UN Development Organisations:

The UN operates numerous agencies that support social and economic development around the world.

The active work of the United Nations is done by six development organisations. Bangladesh benefits from them all.

UNICEF:

United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund provides many education and health programmes for children: primary school education, vaccination, latrines, drinking water, nutrition etc.

World Bank:

World Bank provides funds for development programmes. Its headquarter is situated in Washington in the USA.

UNDP:

United Nations Development Programme helps Bangladesh to reduce poverty, reduce the risk of climate disasters, and build economic growth.

FAO:

Food and Agriculture Organisation. Its headquarter is situated in Rome in Italy. Distributes emergency food during disasters. It also aims to improve countries' long-term agricultural development.

WHO:

World Health Organisation. Its activities are run in six regions in the world. Bangladesh is the part of south-east Asia. Bangladesh benefits from programmes on hospital care and family planning. We join in World Health Day on 7 April.

UNESCO:

United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organisation. Its headquarter is in Paris in France. Introduced International Mother Language Day. It aids the excavation of Paharpur and the conservation of the Sundarbans.
